Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 25 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Scattered showers tonight and Wednesday morning. Dry and bright later.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any showers will quickly die away during the evening to become largely dry with developing clear spells. However, some further showers are likely to affect northern and western parts later in the night. Largely cloudy by dawn. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Wednesday:
Overnight showers will spread across southern and eastern parts during the morning, before clearing away east. Dry and bright otherwise. Best chance of any sunshine in the west. Feeling warmer. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
A fine and dry period, with variable amounts of cloud but feeling warm in any spells of sunshine, especially on Saturday. Some chilly nights, with overnight fog likely for some.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.